Regency Healthcare Centre Celebrates Valentine's Day in a Majestic Way

TAYLOR, MI, March 23, 2012 – Patients celebrated Valentine's Day at Regency Healthcare Centre in Taylor with a Valentine's Day Party, on Tuesday, February 14, 2012. Not only did the patients enjoy festive treats, but a Valentine's Day King and Queen were also announced. Cassie Dillon, Activities Director, indicated they will hold their titles until they announce a new King and Queen next year.

The highlight of the event was the presentation of a King and Queen. The honorable title of "King" went to John McAllister, who has been a patient at Regency since June of 2009 and the majestic title of "Queen" went to Alice Manns, who was recently admitted to the facility in January of this year.

One of King John McAllister's passions is his love for Bingo. He also especially enjoys going to play Bingo at the Emerald Hall in Wyandotte. Barb Vagt, Customer Service, professes, ".....everyone in the facility knows John." On the other hand, Queen Alice Manns is very quiet, but enjoys going to all the activities offered at the facility.

A King and Queen are selected every year for Valentine's Day. The winners are selected by votes tallied from the patients, family members, visitors and staff.

Regency Healthcare Centre is part of an alliance of extended-care facilities that is committed to providing a continuum of short-term and long-term care services. The 244-bed facility is conveniently located in Taylor, on Telegraph Road between Goddard and Northline. Regency provides a wide variety of services to promote recovery from: orthopedic injuries, including fractures, dislocations and hip/knee replacements; surgery; acute onset of medical condition; neurological disorders, such as stroke, traumatic brain injury, Parkinson's and ALS, as well as neuromuscular disorders and other complex diagnosis. When your need is for short-term intensive therapy, the dedicated and compassionate staff at Regency Healthcare Centre helps each one of our patients feel at home.

The Olympia Group Healthcare Network consists of five other facilities, Ambassador Nursing & Rehabilitation Centre in Detroit, Father Murray Nursing & Rehabilitation Centre in Center Line, Imperial Healthcare Centre in Dearborn Heights, St. Joseph's Healthcare Center in Hamtramck and Westland Nursing & Rehabilitation Centre in Westland. We are the "Leaders in Short-Term Rehabilitation."
